Un- A prefix derived from two sources and with two uses, viz. those of negation and those of reversal or undoing. As expressive of simple negation it is A.Sax. un- (Goth. un-, G. un-, D. on-, L. in-, all signifying not); and in this sense it is used chiefly before adjectives, past participles passive, and present participles used adjectively, being also prefixed to some nouns as in untruth, undress, unrest, unwisdom, &c. Before some words of Latin origin it may be used alternatively with in or non; thus unalterable, inalterable; inelastic, inelastic, and non-elastic. As expressing reversal it represents A.Sax. on-, ond-, and-, an- in answer (Icel. and Goth. and-, G. ant-, L. ante, before), and is generally prefixed to active transitive verbs, as, undo, unlearn, unlock, unmake, &c. As adjectives and participles with the prefix un-, simply in the sense of not, are almost unlimited in number, and their meaning generally quite obvious, many of them are omitted from this work. When such words, however, have a special signification or usage of their own, and are not simply to be explained as equivalent to 'not' and their latter element, they are here given (as, for instance, unaccountable, unruly, unconscious, unparalleled, &c.). Verbs and nouns with the other un as a prefix are also carefully defined.

PRONOUNCING VOCABULARY OF GREEK, LATIN, SCRIPTURAL, AND OTHER ANCIENT NAMES

RULES AND DIRECTIONS FOR PRONOUNCING

The pronunciation indicated in the following list is that usually heard from educated speakers of English, who as a rule do not attempt to pronounce Greek or Latin or Scriptural names in the way in which they were pronounced by the ancients themselves—if that could be with certainty determined—but rather seek to assimilate the pronunciation to that of their own language. There is therefore no great difficulty in the pronunciation of such words, and by attention to the following rules and directions any name in the list can be sounded correctly.

Special knowledge required for the right pronunciation of these words is—

1. The seat of accent; and
2. The sound to be given to the letters as they stand in the word.

The syllable of the word which is to receive the accent is denoted by the usual mark, an acute accent, placed immediately after it, as the first syllable of the word Ab'i-la, the second of the word Cam-by'ses, and the third of the word San-cho-ni'a-thon. The seat of the accent varies considerably in words of more than two syllables, though it is never on the last syllable; in dissyllables it is always on the first. The pronunciation of the latter, therefore, as also of monosyllabic words, after the following remarks are studied, will present no difficulty, and consequently few of them are given in the list below. The division into separate syllables is denoted by the mark - as well as by the accentuation mark. Two vowels coming together in a word, but having one or other of these marks between them, must therefore always be pronounced as belonging to different syllables.

The sounds to be given to the several letters will be considered under two general heads, viz.: 1. The vowel letters; and 2. The consonant letters. It must always be borne in mind that silent letters, so common in English (e final for instance), are the exception in the words here treated.

I.—THE VOWEL LETTERS

The vowels heard in the words fate, me, pine, note, and tube, are called long vowels; while those heard in the words fat, met, pin, not, and us, are called short vowels.

1. When any of the vowel letters a, e, i, o, and u, constitute an accented syllable, and also when they end one, they are pronounced as long vowels; thus, in the first syllable of the words Ca'to, Pe'lops, Di'do, So'lon, and Ju'ba, they are pronounced as in the respective key-words fate, me, pine, note, and tube.

2. When the vowel letters are followed by one or more consonants in a syllable, they are pronounced as short vowels; thus, in the first syllable of the words Ca'sca, He'cu-ba, Cin'na, Cor'du-ba, and Pub'li-us, they are pronounced as in the respective key-words fat, met, pin, not, and us.

3. When the letter a constitutes an unaccented syllable, as in A-by'dos, and when it ends one, as in Ju'ba, it is pronounced as in fat.

4. The so-called diphthongs æ, œ, are always pronounced as the e of me, and are therefore simple vowel sounds, as in Cæ'sar, Pæ'stum, E'ō-lus, Bœ-ō'ti-a.

5. The digraph ai in a syllable is pronounced like ai in wait. It occurs only in Scriptural names. The ai of Greek words was pronounced like common English affirmative ay, or much the same as i in pine; but by the common spelling it is Latinized into œ. An a and an i coming together, but belonging to different syllables, will of course have either the accent or the mark - between them.

6. When r follows a in the same syllable, and is itself followed by a consonant, as in Argo, Car-tha'go, the a is pronounced as in far. In such a word as Ar'u-dus it is sounded as in fat.

7. The digraph au, as in Clau'di-us, Au'fid'i-us, is pronounced as in fall. An a and a u coming together, however, may belong to different syllables, as in Em-ma'us.

8. When e is followed by r in the same syllable, as in Her'mes, Mer-cu'ri-us, the e is pronounced as e of her. The letters i, u, and y, before r, have the same sound, as in Vir'gil, Bur'sa, Cyr'nus. When er is followed by a vowel, however, e is sounded as in met, thus Er'a-to, Mer-o-e.

9. The digraph ei, as in Plei'a-des, is pronounced as i of pine. An e and i coming together, however, may belong to different syllables. Compare Rules 5 and 7.

10. The diphthong or digraph eu, as in Leu'cip'pus, E-leu'sis, Ti-mo'theus, is pronounced as u of tube. It occurs chiefly in Greek names. In other cases the e and u belong to separate syllables. Compare Rules 7 and 9.

11. The letter i at the end of any other unaccented syllable than the last, as in Ind'i-a, Fa'bi-i, is pronounced as i of pin.

12. In many cases i assumes the value of y consonant in English; thus Aquileia is pronounced as if Aqui-le'ya, Gaius as if Ga'yus. This is especially common in the termination of words.

13. O at the end of an unaccented syllable, as also when constituting an unaccented syllable by itself, is generally pronounced long or of medium length. Followed by r in the same syllable, as in Gorg'us, it is not usually pronounced long, but as o of not. The o in such a position is, however, by some speakers pronounced rather long than short, this being pretty much a matter of taste.

14. At the end of an unaccented syllable, or forming an unaccented syllable (as in Æ'du-i, A-bi'hu), u is pronounced much the same as when accented, but shorter. Following q it is pronounced as u.

15. The letter y is pronounced as i would be in corresponding positions; thus the y in Ty'a-na is as i of pine; and the y in Tyn'da-rus as i of pin.

II.—THE CONSONANT LETTERS

The consonant letters b, d, f, h, j, k, l, m, n, p, q, r, v, y, and z, have each but one sound, they present no difficulty. The letters c, g, s, t, and x, have each more than one sound, and hence require rules to pronounce them aright.

1. C and g are hard, or sounded as in call and gun respectively, when immediately followed by the vowel letters a, o, and u, as in Ca'sca, Corneli-a, Curti-us, Hec'a-te, Hec'u-ba, Gall'us, Gordi-us, Au-gus'tus, Meg'a-ra. C and g are also hard immediately before other consonant letters, as in Clau'di-us, Ec-bat'a-na, Hec'tor, Glauc'us.

2. C and g are soft when immediately followed by the vowel letters e, i, and y, and the so-called diphthongs æ, œ, either in the same or in the following syllable, as in Cer-be-rus, Cin'na, Cy-re-ne, Cic'e-ro, Gel'i-us, Gis'co, Gy'as, Ag-e-la-us, Cæ'sar, Cœ-ci-li-us. In words such as Dacia, Sicyon, Phocion, Accius, Glaucia, Cappadocia, the ci or cy, having the accent immediately before it, is often pronounced as shi; some authorities, however, retain the s sound in such words.

3. In Scriptural names, such as Megiddo, Gideon, g is always hard, except in the single word Bethphage. In consulting the list this will have to be kept in mind. The s following Scriptural names will serve as a guide.

4. When c and g are initial letters of a syllable, and immediately followed by n or by t, they are usually left silent in pronunciation;

thus, Cneus is pronounced Ne'us; Gnidus, Ni'dus; and Ctenos, Te'nos. Some persons, however, pronounce the c and g in these combinations; and should the reader elect to do so, he must pronounce them hard.

5. In Scripture names h often follows a vowel in the same syllable; as in Mic'ah, Isa'iah, Cal-neh, the vowel in these cases being pronounced with its short sound and the h being mute. In Greek names rh is equivalent to simple r.

6. The digraph ch is pronounced as k, thus, Achilles is pronounced A-kil'les; Chios, Ki'os; Enoch, En'ok. The Scripture name Rachel is the single exception to this rule, ch in it being sounded as in chain.

7. S as an initial of words is pronounced as s of the word son, as in So'lon, Spar'ta, Styx. It is commonly so pronounced as an initial of other than the first syllable of words, as in Su'sa, Si-sen'na; but in some exceptional cases the s receives the sound of z, as in the word Cæsar, which is pronounced Cæ'zar. These exceptions will be denoted by the direction 's as z', inclosed within parentheses, thus, Cæ'sar (s as z).

8. S final of words, when preceded by e, is pronounced as z; thus Aristides is pronounced Ar-is-ti'déz. And the e so placed is pronounced as in the word me. But when the final s is preceded by any other vowel, it is pronounced as s of son, as in Archytas, Amphipolis, Abydos, Adrastus.

9. S at the end of words when preceded by a liquid, l, m, n, or r, is pronounced as z, as in Mars, which is pronounced Marz; Aruns, A'runz.

10. When ti followed by a vowel occurs next after the accented syllable of a word, it is pronounced as sh; thus Statius is pronounced Sta'shi-us; Helvetii, Hel-ve'shi-i; and similarly with Abantias, Actium, Maxentius, Laertius, &c. The proper sound of the t is preserved, however, when ti is accented or when it follows s or another t, as in Mil-ti-a-des, Sal-lus'ti-us, Brut'ti-i; so also in the termination -tion, as in Ae'ti-on. In such words as Domitius the t itself may be said to receive the sh sound: Do-mish'i-us.

11. The digraph th is pronounced as th of the word thin, as in Tha'li'a.

12. X at the beginning of syllables is pronounced as z, thus Xenophon is Zen'o-pho-n. But at the end of syllables it retains its voiceless sound of k, thus Oxus is pronounced Oks'us. If, however, the x end a syllable which immediately precedes a vowel in the accented syllable, then the x may be pronounced with voiced sound, that of hard g followed by z, as in Alexarchus, which is often pronounced Al-e-gz-ar'chus.

13. The letter p, when initial, and followed by t, is not usually uttered, as in Ptolemæus, which is pronounced Tol'e-mæ-us.

14. Ph represents the Greek character φ, and is pronounced as f; thus, Philippi is pronounced Fil-i'ppi. But when ph is followed by a consonant in the same syllable, as in Phthia, it is usually omitted in utterance, this word being pronounced Thi'a.

15. Ps represents the Greek character ψ, which as an initial is pronounced as s, the p being generally omitted in utterance, as in Psyche, which is pronounced Sy'ke. Many persons, however, pronounce the p as well as the s.

16. As a general rule, when any combinations of consonant letters which are difficult to utter occur at the initial part of words, the utterance of the first may be omitted, thus Tmolus may be pronounced Mol'us; Mnemosyne, Ne-mos'y-ne; Ctesiphon, Te'si-pho-n; while the digraph ch is dropped in Cthonia, making the pronunciation Tho'ni-a.

FORMS OF ADDRESS

USED IN CEREMONIOUS COMMUNICATIONS WITH PERSONS OF TITLE OR OFFICIAL POSITION

Ambassador. The title 'Excellency' belongs specially to ambassadors, as well as to governors of colonies. Address letters 'His Excellency (with name or distinctive title following) His Britannic Majesty's Ambassador Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the Court of —'. Begin: 'Sir', 'My Lord', according as the ambassador possesses title or not. When personal reference is made say 'Your Excellency'. An envoy extraordinary or chargé d'affaires, though inferior to an ambassador strictly so called, also usually receives the title 'Excellency'; and the wives of ambassadors are generally addressed similarly during their husbands' tenure of office and while residing abroad.
Archbishop. Address: 'His Grace the Lord Archbishop of —'. Begin: 'My Lord Archbishop'. Refer to as 'Your Grace'. The most formal method of addressing the Archbishop of Canterbury is as follows: 'The Most Reverend Father in God, Randall (or whatever the Christian name is), by Divine Providence Lord Archbishop of Canterbury, Primate of All England and Metropolitan'. The Archbishop of York is addressed as 'The Most Reverend Father in God, Cosmo, by Divine Permission Lord Archbishop of York, Primate of England and Metropolitan'. An Irish archbishop is addressed as 'The Most Reverend the Archbishop of —'. An archbishop may be addressed as 'The Right Honourable and Most Reverend the Archbishop of —' if he have a claim to be called 'Right Hon.' apart from his ecclesiastical position. In America the common form of address is 'The Most Reverend A—B—, D.D.'. The wife of an archbishop has no special title in right of her husband's dignity, being only plain Mrs.

Archdeacon. An archdeacon is styled 'Venerable': 'The Venerable the Archdeacon of —'. Begin: 'Venerable Sir', or 'Reverend Sir', or 'Mr. Archdeacon' (especially in speaking).
Baron. Address: 'The Right Hon. Lord —'; less formally 'The Lord —'. Begin: 'My Lord'. Refer to as 'Your Lordship'.
Baroness. Address: 'The Right Hon. the Baroness —', or 'The Right Hon. Lady —', or 'The Lady —'. Begin: 'Madam'; refer to as 'Your Ladyship'.
Baronet. Address: 'Sir A—B—, Bart., giving Christian name and surname. The Christian name must be given; it is quite wrong to speak, for instance, of 'Sir Vernon Harcourt' where 'Vernon' is merely one of the surnames. Begin: 'Sir'. A baronet's wife is addressed as 'Lady' with husband's surname (her Christian name would also be used if the daughter of a duke, marquiss, or earl). Begin: 'Madam'; refer to as 'Your Ladyship'.
Baron's Daughter. Baron's daughters are all entitled to be called 'Honourable'. Unmarried they are addressed as 'The Hon. A—B—', with Christian name and surname. They retain the title 'Hon.' after marriage, the wife of a commoner being 'The Hon. Mrs.' with husband's surname, the wife of a knight or baronet being 'The Hon. Lady' with husband's surname. Begin: 'Madam'. If a higher rank is conferred by the husband the title of course corresponds.
Baron's Son. All the sons are 'Honourable', with Christian name and surname. The eldest son of a viscount or baron of Scotland (i.e. a creation prior to 1707) is addressed as 'The Hon.

the Master of' (peerage title), or 'The Hon. (John), Master of —'. Begin: 'Sir'. The wife of a baron's son is 'The Hon. Mrs.', with husband's surname or both Christian name and surname. Begin: 'Madam'. If the daughter of an earl, marquess, or duke she must be addressed accordingly.
Bishop. Address: 'The Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of —', or 'The Right Rev. A—B—, Lord Bishop of —', or simply 'The Lord Bishop of —'. Begin: 'My Lord Bishop'; refer to as 'Your Lordship'. In formal documents a bishop is styled 'The Right Reverend Father in God, John, by Divine Permission, Lord Bishop of —'. A bishop suffragan is addressed as 'The Right Rev. the Bishop Suffragan of —'. Begin: 'Right Rev. Sir'. Bishops' wives have no share in their husbands' titles.
 In Ireland the bishops of the Protestant church are addressed as 'The Right Reverend the Bishop of —' (or in the case of Meath 'The Most Reverend'). Begin: 'Right Rev. Sir'. In Scotland a bishop is addressed as 'The Right Rev. Bishop —' (with surname). Begin: 'Right Rev. Sir'. The Primus of the Scottish Episcopal Church is addressed as 'The Most Rev.'. Begin: 'Most Rev. Sir'. Neither Irish nor Scottish bishops can claim to be spoken of as 'Lord Bishop', 'Your Lordship', though this is sometimes done.

Canon. Address: 'The Rev. Canon —'. Begin: 'Reverend Sir'.

Cardinal. The special title of a cardinal as such is 'His Eminence'. Begin: 'Your Eminence'.

Chargé d'Affaires. See Ambassador.

Clergy. The general form of address is 'The Reverend A—B—'. Begin: 'Rev. Sir' or simply 'Sir'. If a clergyman is the son of a duke or marquess he is to be addressed as 'The Rev. Lord A—B—'; if the son of an earl, viscount, or baron: 'The Rev. the Honourable A—B—'. If he is a baronet, 'The Rev. Sir A—B—, Bart'.

Congress, Members of (U.S.). Addressed generally 'The Honourable A—B—'.

Consul. There is no special form of address to a person as such. 'A—B—, Esq., H. B. M.'s Consul', 'Consul-general', or as the case may be. In the U. States, however, a consul is commonly called 'Honourable'.

Countess. Address: 'The Right Honourable the Countess of —'. Begin: 'Madam'; refer to as 'Your Ladyship'.

Dean. Address: 'The Very Reverend the Dean of —'. Begin: 'Very Rev. Sir'; more familiarly 'Mr. Dean' (used in oral communications).

Doctor. The initials denoting the particular degree are placed after the usual form of address, whether D.D., LL.D., M.D., Mus. Doc., D.Litt., D.Sc., or Ph.D. 'The Rev. A—B—, D.D.', 'A—B—, Esq., M.D.'. Less formally: 'The Rev. Doctor B—'; 'Doctor A—B—'.

Dowager. When the holder of a title marries, the widow of the previous holder of the same title becomes 'dowager', this being often inserted in addressing her: 'The Right Hon. the Dowager Countess of —'; 'The Dowager Lady —'. Instead of 'Dowager', to which some ladies object, the Christian name is now generally used: 'The Right Hon. Mary Countess of —'. Begin: 'Madam'; refer to as 'Your Ladyship'. The term 'dowager' is never used except when the lady addressed is mother or grandmother of the peer or baronet who holds the title for the time being.

Duchess. Address: 'Her Grace the Duchess of —'. Begin: 'Madam'; refer to as 'Your Grace'.

Duke. Address: 'His Grace the Duke of —'. Begin: 'My Lord Duke'; refer to as 'Your Grace'.

Duke's Daughter. Address: 'Lady', with Christian name and surname. Begin: 'Madam'; refer to as 'Your Ladyship'. If married to a commoner or a peer by courtesy, the surname is derived from the husband's name or title; if to a peer the wife takes a title corresponding to her husband's.

Duke's Son. A duke's eldest son takes by courtesy one of his father's secondary titles, and is thus usually a marquess or an earl, being addressed exactly as if really a peer with the respective rank. He takes precedence as a marquess, irrespective of what his father's secondary title may be. His wife receives the corresponding title, being thus a marchioness or countess, and their eldest son takes also a courtesy title belonging to the family, being thus either a viscount or a baron.

A duke's younger son is addressed as 'Lord A—B—'. Begin: 'My Lord'; refer to as 'Your Lordship'. Their wives are treated in a corresponding manner: 'Lady A—B—' (husband's Christian name and surname); 'Madam', 'Your Ladyship'.

Other coins are the white (silver) and black (copper) mahmudi of 12 and 3 peissas respectively (1 peissa =  $\frac{3}{4}$  d.). Money of account is the cuver or kaleik, value  $\frac{1}{4}$  d. The Maria Theresa dollar (value 2s.) also circulates. In Hejaz and Nejd Turkish coins ceased to be legal tender in 1928. The unit in these countries now is the silver Arab dollar (Mejidieh). The present Reichsmark has the same par value as the pre-war mark and as the Rentenmark.

The guinea, a gold coin worth 21s., has long been withdrawn from circulation, though sums of so many guineas are still often spoken of.

Gold coins.—The sovereign and half-sovereign are the only coins that really form part of the currency, though 2-sovereign and 5-sovereign pieces have been coined. Estonia. The metric system has been adopted. Finland. The metric system has been adopted. France. The system of weights and measures established in France is known as the metric system, because it is based on the metre. The metre is equal to 39·37 inches or 3·281 feet; hence 11 metres = 12 yards. All the other measures of length are got either by subdividing or multiplying the metre by 10, the French system being entirely decimal in character.

The chief subdivisions of the metre are the decimetre or tenth of a metre = 3·937 inches, the centimetre or hundredth of a metre = 3·937 of an inch, or nearly ¼ or ⅕ths of an inch or ⅓ of a foot; and the millimetre, or thousandth of a metre = 3·937 of an inch.

The chief multiple of the metre is the kilometre of 1000 metres = 3280·87 feet, or 1093·6 yards, or fully three-fifths of a mile (more correctly 621 of a mile).

The chief weights are the gramme and the kilogramme (or 1000 grammes). The gramme is intended to be, and very nearly is, the weight of a cubic centimetre of distilled water, and the kilogramme the weight of a cubic decimetre of distilled water at the temperature of 4° Centigrade or 39·1° Fahr. In English weight the gramme = 15·43 grains; the kilogramme = 2·2 lbs. or 35·27 oz. The quintal or centner = 220·4 lbs.; the tonneau = 2204 lbs.

The measures of surface are mostly named after the corresponding measures of length: the square centimetre = 155 of a square inch, or 1 sq. inch = 6·45 sq. centimetres; the square decimetre = 15½ sq. inches; the square metre = 10·76 sq. feet; the are = 100 sq. metres = 119·6 sq. yards; the hectare (100 ares) the common measure for land = 2·47 acres or 2 acres 230 sq. yard (say 2½ acres). The square kilometre = 386 of a square mile.

The chief cubic or solid measures are the cubic centimetre = 161 of a cubic inch; the cubic decimetre = 61 cubic inches; and the cubic metre or stère = 35·3 cubic feet or 1·3 cubic yard. Hence 1 cubic yard = 764 of a cubic metre.

The standard measure of capacity is the litre = 61 cubic inches or 1·76 pint or 88 of a quart. The centilitre, or one hundredth of a litre = 0·7 of a gill; the decilitre = 7043 of a gill; the decalitre (or ten litres) = 2·2 gallons; the hectolitre (100 litres) = 22 gallons = 2·75 bushels; the kilolitre (1000 litres) = 220 gallons = 27½ bushels = 3·44 quarters.

See FRANCE.

The German meile or mile = 4·68 English miles; the German geographical mile = one fifteenth of a degree of the equator.

decimetre the palamé, the centimetre the daktylos, the millimetre the grammé. The litre is called the litra, the decilitre the kolylé, the hectolitre the koiton. The gramme is called the drachmé, and 1500 drachmai = 1 mina = 1½ kilogramme = 3·3 lbs. The oke = 2·84 lbs. The stremma is 242 of an acre. In 1922 the use of the metric system was made compulsory. See FRANCE.

Uruguay. The metric system has nominally been adopted, but old weights and measures, as in the Argentine Republic, are chiefly in use; also those of Brazil. The cuadra of land = 1·8 acre.

Venezuela. Same as Colombia, Peru, &c.

West African Colonies. As in Britain.

Yugoslavia. See SERB, CROAT, and SLOVENE STATE.
